EPISCOPAL CANON TO UNDERGO CHANGE

DIVORCE QUESTION GIVEN ATTENTION AT CONVENTION

Would Give Bishop Wider Authority in Determining When Divorcees May Remarry--Suggested Revision Will be Submitted to General Session.

The complexities of modern society have outgrown the Episcopal canon dealing with the remarriage of divorcees, Rev. Sidney Sweet, of St. Paul's Episcopal church declared Thursday at the Episcopal diocesan meeting.

The church must change its tactics if it is to keep pace with the trend of society, Rev. Sweet said, explaining two resolutions seeking to liberalize Episcopal marriage laws which he introduced at the convention in Columbus of the diocese of Southern Ohio.

Both resolutions were adopted by the convention and will be presented to the general convention of the denomination meeting next autumn in New Orleans.

They would amend the iron-clad rule of the church denying remarriage to divorced persons except the innocent victims of infidelity. One reform would grant the bishop unrestricted discretion in passing judgment on all marriages which have been legally annulled. The other would permit him to go behind the divorce court records in pursuing his investigation to determine whether either party should be allowed to remarry.

The present divorce canon provides that if a man attempt to save his wife's reputation by permitting her to sue him for divorce on some general grounds the church cannot go behind the record of the court in authorizing him to remarry.

Under Rev. Sweet's proposed amendment the bishop would have authority to consider the real fact in the case regardless of the court record.

The resolutions were adopted by the convention without serious opposition.

SUNDAY MOVIES AT CHILLICOTHE ARE NO MORE.

Bashful swains can't hold hands in Chillicothe's movies in the future on Sunday night as all local owners agreed to close up shop on Sundays, following the conviction of two of their number by juries for violating the Sunday law. Earl Myers and John Kaiser were each fined $100. C. A. Smith, also indicted, agreed to cease operating on Sunday.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Columbus, Jan. 30—Ohio State university is telling the world it isn't raising $3,500 prize cows to be bull-eyes. "No hunting" signs have been plastered all over the model farm of the college of agriculture.

New Lexington, Jan. 30—W. R. Calkins found the "blue bird of happiness" right in his own back yard. It came in the form of an oil and gas well which has swelled Calkins' income $100 a day. Calkins drilled the well himself.

Alligators Birds' Foes

Alligators are one of the principal enemies of water birds in southern game preserves.

Women Legislators of Illinois

For the next two years women will have a hand in controlling both the upper and lower houses at the state capitol of Illinois, during the sessions of the Fifty-fourth general assembly. Three women, out of a total of 153 state representatives, took their seats in the lower house, and one woman, the pioneer "lady" in the upper house, joined officially the group of 51 state senators. Here are women representatives. Left to right—Mrs. J. Paul Goode, Mrs. Lottie Pullman O'Neal and Mrs. Rena Elrod.

DIXIE MILLS ELEVATORS AT AUCTION

H. M. Crites Buys Five Properties for $24,567--With in $933 of Appraisal.

Over a quarter of a million of dollars worth of mill and elevator property was offered for sale by Charles Gerhardt and Edwin C. Wright, receivers for the Dixie Mills property thru their attorneys, I. F. Snyder and Marion Murphy, at the court house Thursday afternoon.

The old Heffner mill property and the Crites' mill and elevator did not sell as there were no bidders for these properties.

The five elevators were bought in by H. M. Crites for $24,567 and this price was within $933 of the appraised value.

The attendance at the sale was good and the bidding was spirited on the elevators. The parcels sold were as follows:

East end elevator appraised at $3,000 sold for $4,000.

The Island road elevator appraised at $1,500 sold for $1,125.

West side elevator in Wayne township sold at $6,667, which was two-thirds of the appraised value.

The elevator at Ritt's crossing appraised at $5,000 sold for $4,775.

The Kinderhook elevator in Wayne township, appraised at $6,000 sold for $8,000. W. B. North was the auctioneer.

London Tower Supplies Designs for Bonnets

London—"Pikeman's pet" styles in women's hats, designed after the steel helmets of the Seventeenth century pikemen, represented in the collection of arms and armor of the Tower of London, are the latest sensation in fashionable London millinery.

For some time, milliners have hunted for designs that would, by their novelty of appeal, lure women away from the popular cloche fashion. Earlier in the season they thought that a successful rival had been found in the square-crowned hat, but this was voted down by fastidious clients.

Now the Seventeenth century helmet is being used as a model for the mid-winter hat. The featherweight felt of the season—steel gray is the favorite color choice for realistic effect—is blocked to the Seventeenth century outline and a tuft of feathers gives the feminine touch.

LEGISLATOR FRANK A. BROWN SUDDENLY ILL.

Representative Frank A. Brown, Ross county, had an attack of gallstones in the House chamber Thursday afternoon. Representative Davidson, Summit county and Senator LeFever, Athens county, both physicians were called to attend Brown.

Brown had a similar attack three weeks ago.

TED LEWIS SENDS GOOD NIGHT KISS

Mother in Circleville is Not Forgotten by the Famous Jazz King.

SALUTE OVER RADIO

Freely Forgiven for Sacrilege in Syncopating "Poet and Peasant."

Federal regulations prohibit direct discourses over the air, but when a popular Broadway star who is also a popular radio artist is, first of all, a popular son, it is to be expected that while he is entertaining tens of thousands with his radio concert three times a week, he will also send a good-night kiss to his mother listening in 600 miles away.

When Ted Lewis with his band began broadcasting from station WHN, he presented his mother, Mrs. Pauline Friedman who lives in the little Ohio town of Circleville, with a powerful receiving set so that she could listen in on his program. And while Ted has tens of thousands of admirers throughout the country who wait up until he goes on the air at midnight and while he receives hundreds of letters of appreciation weekly from fans everywhere his greatest thrill comes from the knowledge that his mother is always listening in and goes to bed in the little Ohio hamlet after getting her good-night greetings from her son.

Laws are laws and even a mother is not exempt from them, so instead of talking directly to his mother, Ted intersperses conversation along the following line into his syncopated half hour in the air:

"Well, I wonder how my motherer out in Circleville, Ohio, is enjoying the concert tonight. She's particularly fond of my new number, 'Show Me the Way,' which I wrote, so I guess I'll play it for her. Mothers always will worry about their sons, especially when they are away off in New York, so I'd like my mother to know I'm feeling fine and my cold is gone now, and I wear my rubbers when I go out in the snow. Well, good-night, folks and here's a goodnight kiss for my mother."

And while there's no broadcasting station in Circleville, Ted Lewis always gets the answering kiss that his mother sends back to him.

Ted's musical career began in the boys' band of Circleville 15 years ago. He was summarily fired from the band for committing sacrilege by syncopating the Poet and Peasant overture, Hands Across the Sea and other traditional numbers instead of following the clarinet score, thus, in the eyes of the conductor, disrupting the esprit re corps of the boys' band of Circleville and spoiling its prize pieces de resistance.

But the eight thousand inhabitants of Circleville have forgotten his earlier disgrace and the whole town joins Ted's mother in listening in to its now foremost citizen.—Columbus Dispatch.

Where Designs Come From

Designs that fascinate the eye of embroidery lovers do not just grow in the mind of the designer or the factory girl who makes them. They are nature's handiwork. Growing plants provide the motif for much needlework, whether done by hand or on machines and the natural form assumed by a plant shooting into growth or a snowflake falling upon a black background are but examples of them.

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE FOR DEAD PRIEST

Funeral of Michael M. Meara Marked With Pomp and Ceremony.

Monsignor James M. Kirwin, vicar general of the Catholic church at Galveston, Texas, celebrated the requiem high mass Thursday at the funeral services for Father Michael M. Meara in St. Joseph's cathedral, Columbus.

All the pomp and ceremony reserved for those highest in the church marked the funeral of the beloved pastor of the cathedral.

Fifty-five priests of the diocese of Columbus were within the altar rail and chanted the litany for the dead before the services. Monsignor Kelly of Beaumont, Texas, assisted at the mass. Rt. Rev. Bishop Hartley presided and Rev. Father Herrington was master of ceremonies.

Karl Hoenig played "Nearer My God to Thee" on Trinity Chimes as the coffin was borne from the cathedral by four nephews, Joseph, Leo, William and Aloysius Hutchins, his brother-in-law, James Fitzpatrick and D. W. Gray whose wife was a niece of the dead priest. Burial was in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

Cheaper to Marry a Cook
By MARTHA WILLIAMS
(Copyright.)

THERE was apology in Benson's closing of the green gate. He went almost slinkingly up the brick walk, hesitated before the side path that ran to the back. But cautious as was his approach he was not surprising those within. Miss Jemmy, peering through a crack in the shutters, sniffed scornfully:

"I do wish you'd look at—that! Wonder what he's after now!"

"He won't get it—no matter what it may be," Marianne, her niece, interrupted, sticking out an obstinate chin.

Miss Jemmy giggled. "I'm a wonderin' which of us he'll ask first! Wife's what he's really after. Reckon it depends on who sees him first."

"Maybe—then you're elected. I'm going outside—and stay till I hear you setting Ginger-Cake on him," Marianne flung back—to an accompaniment of faint rapping on the screen door. Benson had carefully overlooked the door to the narrow entry, also that to the back piazza, in favor of the rear-most opening. How should he know, poor soul, that Ginger-Cake, the sleepless guardian of the Martins and their belongings, lay just inside, nose between paws, eyes batting sleepily, but for all that, as ready for action as a hornet's nest.

"Lawdy mercy me! If it ain't Jud Benson!" Miss Jemmy cried, flinging open the door, unnoting Ginger-Cake's sudden leap to attention. She began to say: "Come right in." But Ginger-Cake had another mind. Out he shot as though from a catapult, lunged himself upon Benson, floored him, and held him fast, the while looking over his shoulder at Miss Jemmy, as though asking: "Now what shall I do with it?"

When she said, "Let go, you fool dog!" he released his catch and slunk away. Miss Jemmy, all concern, helped Benson up and took him solicitously inside.

Benson settled himself firmly, hands on knees, eyes fixed on a knothole in the piazza floor, and buzzed on: "Miss Jemmy, you see a desprit man. Three months since Sarah passed on—seems like three years, each longer, and blacker, and wusser than the other. Think o' me—all ter my lone in that big house—with nineteen cows in the barn, all to be milked and done for—and nobody but me to keep help up to the mark. Not a decent meal o' vittles, except what I've sneaked often my neighbors—women with white won't come ter cook in a house with jest a man in it—and them that ain't with white makes things a heap wuss. I'm willin' ter pay—the good Lord knows! Why, I'd give anybody as much as twenty dollars a month ter come and do fer me—and look after the milk things, special the separator and strainers."

"H'm! Yes!" Miss Jemmy interrupted. "But—where've you been these last few years? How come you don't know what real cooks can ask—and get, with thanks? A hundred a month, if you please—and sometimes twice that. You haven't said so right out flat—but I reckon you're thinkin' it'll be cheaper to marry a cook, nurse and seamstress than to hire one. Maybe you're right—but lemme tell you—to get a woman of any sense or judgment, you'll have to go where nobody's ever heard of you. Lemme tell you, too, ef you had spent money on a live Sarah as you did on a dead one—casket with silver trimmin's, satin flim', paid choir, and a town preacher to tell all he didn't know about her—it's my judgment you'd have heap better chances of heaven—and matrimony."

"Sarah—never—complained," Benson all but whimpered.

"No—she wasn't that sort," from Miss Jemmy stoutly. "You wouldn't let her keep her sister's orphans—rather put 'em in the 'sylum! You ought to feel yourself same as a murderer."

She had gone too far. The cowering Benson leaped at her, caught her shoulders, and shook her. Rescue came swiftly—in shape of Marianne, Ginger-Cake and a tall young stranger of fine open countenance, but shadowed eyes. Ginger-Cake accounted for Benson. As that person sank heavily into a chair, Marianne said to the stranger: "There is—the person you came to see," then to Miss Jemmy: "I found him on the road—and brought him—just in time, it seems."

Miss Jemmy, not quite steady of voice, said slowly: "I see—you are poor Sarah Benson's nephew she wanted to see so bad—"

"I got the letter two days ago—too late," the young fellow answered swallowing hard.

Benson suddenly looked up, tried to rise, fell back with a hoarse cry, all one burly side of him stricken helpless.

He lived thus a year—with Sarah's nephew his stay and comfort. His coming was a real providence, said Miss Jemmy. All the more heartily when he proved to be Benson's sole heir—and fell handsomely in love with Marianne, who had guided him to fortune and happiness.

Favored by Conditions, Moose Are Multiplying

George Cotter, game warden of Seward, Alaska, just back from an inspection trip, declares there are 5,000 moose on Kenai peninsula alone, while from the Yukon come similar reports. The marshy country along the Stikine and Tanana rivers is some of the best moose region in the North. Where did all these moose come from? There is a theory, of Alaskan origin, that moose have been driven from the Canadian northeast by the continual banging of guns year after year and, finding their way slowly through the wilderness, have crossed the mountains into Alaska. The big animals have found climate and food conditions ideal. Hot summer with luxuriant growth of willow and birch, marshy lakes with lily roots, and dense evergreen forests for cover, offer moose pleasant home surroundings. In some regions they are free to roam at will and increase, for miners have left, the Indian tribes are decimated by disease, and it is too far inland for ordinary hunting trips. The average Alaskan moose weighs from 1,000 to 1,500 pounds and stands eight to ten feet high at the shoulders. Only the head, neck and antlers are usually shipped out by hunters, but the meat is excellent and the hide of value for leather products.

Fright Worked Cure in Arm Long Paralyzed

Fright has cured Russell Lewis, Seneca county (Ohio) farmer, of paralysis, says the New York World. Lewis' left hand had been paralyzed for three years. He was alone in his home near Bascom recently when he heard a noise at a rear door.

Fearing some one was trying to break into the house, Lewis caught up an ax handle with his left hand and started for the door.

Suddenly he realized he was using the hand which had been helpless for three years. He stopped and moved his hand, working his fingers back and forth.

With a shout of joy he ran from the house, discovering as he did so that a pet dog, scratching at the door, had been the cause of his alarm.

Married Men, Take Heed!

The mother-in-law has turned. At least she has in Orange, N. J.

There the mothers-in-law have organized to let the world know that there is nothing in the mother-in-law joke, and to show that they are human and social beings.

Mother-in-law has been the butt of jokes of vaudeville artists for years---and, really, she doesn't deserve it. Statistics show that very few of her have ever welted a son-in-law over the ear with a rolling pin, or dictated the pattern of his shirts.

And how very few stop to consider that most mothers-in-law become grandmothers---and everyone knows that a grandmother is a kind, good, loving soul, who is devoted to the children and knows how to make delicious doughnuts and pancakes.---Brooklyn Standard-Union.

Long-Headed Youngster

S. S. Shambaugh, assistant treasurer and sales manager of the Kokomo Steel and Wire company, has a son who arrived at the mature age of six several days ago.

"I went home that evening without taking the youngster a birthday present, so when the subject was mentioned, I handed him a five-dollar bill," said Mr. Shambaugh, telling the story.

"Buy your own present," I told him. "He studied for a moment, then remarked:

"Thank you, daddy---but don't you think you ought to make it six dollars? I'm six years old."

"And," concluded Mr. Shambaugh, "that's that!"---Indianapolis News.

Ingenious "Chink"

Among the people of Florida Lue Gim Gong is known as the "Chinese Burbank." He has received award of the Wilder medal of the United States Department of Agriculture for developing a variety of oranges known as the Lue Gim, which has a capacity for staying on the tree several years after it is ripe without spoiling, while the tree continues to bear fruit and blossom. Another of his citrus products is the Gim Gong grapefruit which will stand several degrees more cold than the ordinary grapefruit.

He'll Make His Way

Frederick Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thomas of Greencastle, is not out of the grade school. It was the night of a basketball game and Frederick was enthusiastically talking of the contest when his father inquired whether he had the price of admission for the evening. The son replied in the negative. Mr. Thomas asked how he thought he could get in. "That's easy, dad, you see I'll back in and the doorkeeper will think I'm coming out."---Indianapolis News.

Dear, Dear!

In the woods near Sheridan, Ore., two deer tried to cross a road on which a motor-car was approaching. One leaped and landed in the lap of the driver, and was slightly injured. The motorist drove the animal home with him.

Accessories Are in Great Variety

Glittering Trinkets Are of Attractive Materials and Gay Colors.

Accessories appear to grow in importance and variety, as if one could not have enough of them. Wherever one sees the smartly dressed woman nowadays, writes a correspondent in the New York Times, one sees at her hand a vanity case, purse, bag, cigarette case or holder, and often a lipstick in its ornamental separate carrier. The materials of which these different trinkets are made are charming in color. Shell rimmed in silver is shown in a great assortment of small articles, from the toilet fittings for a traveling bag to the slenderest, most elegant cigarette holder. Jade or translucent composition in jade color is enchanting, either with silver mounting or set with brilliants. Amethyst, clear amber, coral and always onyx with crystal are among the attractive novelties.

In this season of garish and almost barbarous ornamentation in dress, the styles in jewels, trinkets, baubles of every sort are endless in variety. The choker necklace is the fad of the moment. The smartest necklaces are made of beads of enormous size, imitation pearls in different colors, gray, pinks, blue and black. Many contrivances are invented, strands of pearls in graduated sizes being hung from the tight-around choker, worn in the front or at the back of the neck in absurd elaboration.

Bracelets grow in popularity, and any one of many styles is fashionable. One may wear several slender bangles, either the colored glass, the gold-flecked crystal, gold or platinum, or one bracelet. A pair in some quaint design like those worn in the '60s' is considered very chic. Some of these have lovely cameos set on them, or oddly twisted gold, set with stones in old-fashioned patterns. Turquoises, garnets and seed pearls are oftentimes seen in these. The lovely old wide bracelet set with seed pearls is growing more and more rare, and is much prized by the women who go in for "period" costumes.

Gloves are drawing flattering attention to fashionable hands. The gauntlet style of glove is so generally worn that few street gloves of any other sort are seen. Invariably the cuff is a circular or plaited, narrow ruffle, pinked, perforated or embroidered. And it is modish now to wear the cuff turned down over the hand, for which reason it is lined to give an ornamental effect.

All of the new gloves are stitched in contrasting color, and in these the belges, tans and browns are especially stylish. Black and white is smart, as always, gloves of each being stitched heavily with the other.

Fancy giving importance to the heel of a shoe! That is what is done in the present mode, heels of evening shoes being as thickly studded with jewels as are the bandeaux for the hair or the very ornate and costly purse bags that look like handfuls of precious stones.

Sports Model Designed for Spring and Summer

This attractive sports model of green and white silk was one of the smart modes shown at the recent spring and summer revue of the Style Creators of America.

New Neckline Is V-Shaped

An outstanding note of fashion is the V-shaped neckline, frequently collarless. In several groups the V is plain in front, while a little standing collar appears in back. For formal wear the V becomes a deeply cut décollete in back and front, modified by a flat piece of matching or contrasting fabric that gives an almost square line.

Good Sewing Hint

When sewing hooks and eyes on a cotton dress that is to pay frequent visits to the wash tubs try sewing the eyes on the outer flap and the hooks on the underneath, wrong side up. This will permit the dress to be ironed more smoothly on the outer side.

You Pay for a DeLaval whether you buy one or not--

If your separator doesn't skim clean you are feeding your pigs and chickens enough butter-fat---which is always the equivalent of cash money---to pay for a new clean-skimming De Laval.

We recently heard of a farmer who more than doubled the size of his cream checks by replacing an old separator of another make with a new De Laval. You may not get such an increase, but you will certainly get some when you put a new De Laval to work---enough to pay for it in a comparatively short time.

Bring in your old separator

We will accept it as partial payment for a brand-new, up-to-date De Laval---the separator with the wonderful self-centering bowl, that skims cleaner, runs easier and lasts longer. It pays for itself by saving the fat that other separators waste.

COOKING FOR HOGS

MAY LOWER COSTS

Practice Is Best For Large-Scale
Producers, Specialists Agree.

Even a hog like, some foods better when they're cooked. Consider soybeans, for example.

Cooking soybeans, a legume that has jumped into prominence within recent years in Ohio, more than doubles their value as a feed for swine, according to tests announced at the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station at Wooster. The only question, the specialists suggest, is whether or not cooking soybeans would be practicable for any but large-scale pork producers.

"In dry lot tests," a bulletin of the experiment station states, "pigs fed cooked soybeans gained half a pound more a head daily and made more than a fourth more gain than other pigs getting raw ground soybeans. Figuring soybeans on the price basis given for other feeds in this test, the beans more than doubled in value when cooked."

Though the work and equipment needed to cook soybeans might not appeal to most Ohio hog men, the practice ought to be profitable to men who produce pork on an extensive scale, in the judgment of J. F. Lyman, professor of agricultural chemistry at the Ohio State University.

"At present prices," Professor Lyman points out, "there is a saving of something like 70 cents a bushel when soybeans are cooked, and the extra labor equipment should not offset more than half of the gross saving. Cooking the beans increases palatability more than digestibility. For that reason soybeans can take a larger place in the ration than usual, an important consideration in this time of high corn prices and a short supply."

6,922 KILLED BY
TRAINS IN 1923

Of This Number 2,779 Were
Trespassers and 138
Passengers.

Washington.—There were 6,922 persons killed and 56,464 injured in connection with the operation of trains in the United States in 1923, according to statistics gathered by the bureau of safety of the interstate commerce commission. Of those killed the toll among trespassers was the highest, while employees suffered the most from injuries. Summarized, the casualties follow: Trespassers, 2,779 killed, 3,047 injured; employees, 1,645 killed, 39,734 injured; persons carried under contract, such as mail clerks, pullman conductors, 21 killed, 674 injured; other nontravellers, 2,339 killed, 7,162 injured.

There were 103 employees killed and 1,954 injured in coupling or uncoupling locomotives or cars, compared with 81 killed and 1,498 injured in 1922. Casualties to employees due to coming in contact with fixed structures resulted in 47 killed and 861 injured. There were 105 employees killed and 8,167 injured in getting on or off cars or locomotives.

A rapid increase was noted in the number of accidents at grade crossings. In this connection the report said:

"During the calendar year 1923 there were 5,218 accidents at highway grade crossings, which resulted in the death of 2,268 persons and the injury of 6,314. Automobiles figured in 4,007 of these accidents, 1,759 persons being killed and 5,416 injured. There were 18 derailments of trains as a result of collisions between trains and automobiles, causing the death of 10 persons and the injury of 77. In addition, there were six derailments of trains as a result of collisions with automobiles, but without death or personal injury."

"We have participated with the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners in the effort to devise ways and means for decreasing accidents at railroad grade crossings. We were represented at a conference on prevention of such accidents held in Chicago April 30-May 1, 1924, called by H. G. Taylor, president of the association, pursuant to a resolution adopted at the last annual convention. The conference was attended by representatives of many railroads, state commissions, the American Association of State Highway Officials, United States bureau of public roads, National Safety Council, American Automobile association, United States Chamber of Commerce, American Railway association and other organizations. One of the main purposes of this conference was to determine ways of co-ordinating the efforts of all organizations engaged in promoting safety at grade crossings. Our bureau of safety is in touch with what is being done by state commissions and others actively engaged in accident-prevention work."

Inspection Service.

Concerning investigation of brakes and safety appliances, the report says: "Approximately 1,170,000 cars and locomotives were inspected. The number per 1,000 inspected which were found with defective safety appliances was 52.73. The corresponding record for the preceding year, during which the shopmen's strike occurred, was 100.31 and for the year ended June 30, 1922, it was 50.54."

"Hours of service reports were filed by 1,166 railroads, of which 786 reported no instances of service in excess of the limit prescribed by law. Three hundred and eighty railroads reported a total of 48,222 instances of excess service, this number representing a decrease of 26.4 per cent compared with the preceding year."

"We investigated 100 train accidents, of which 52 were collisions and 48 were derailments. The collisions resulted in the death of 119 and the injury of 928 persons; the derailments resulted in the death of 127 and the injury of 572 persons, a total of 246 killed and 1,500 injured."

"The percentage of locomotives found defective decreased from 85 per cent during the year 1923 to 53.4 per cent during the last year, but it is still higher than during the year 1922, when 48 per cent of the locomotives inspected by our inspectors were found defective."

"There were 43 boiler explosions, which resulted in the death of 45 and the serious injury of 59 persons, a decrease in the number of explosions of 24.6 per cent as compared with the preceding year, but an increase of 30 per cent over the year 1922."

"Most of these explosions were caused by overheating of the crown-sheet because of low water in the boiler, although contributory defects or causes were found in 52.4 per cent of the cases. The necessity for better construction, inspection and repair of all parts and appurtenances is apparent."

Tokyo Regains People

Tokyo.—Tokyo has resumed her place as the fifth city of the world, according to a police census taken here recently. After the earthquake of September, 1923, Tokyo lost a quarter of her population and dropped behind Berlin. The police enumeration shows that the city now has 1,917,000 inhabitants, a gain of 890,000 from the figures just after the earthquake, but 260,000 less than before the disaster.

AMUSEMENTS

Buster Keaton is in a class by himself, and in "The Navigator," his latest Metro-Goldwyn release which opened at the Met theater last night, he has contributed one of the best comedies ever made for sheer entertainment and real physical laughs. There isn't a dull moment in "The Navigator," in fact, last night's audience was kept in a continual state of hilarity with several spasms of hysteria besides. It's for the whole family; every one will be pleased and there isn't an objectionable scene or thought in it.

The story, as written by Jean Hervez, Clyde Bruckman and Joseph Mitchell, Keaton's gag men, offers great opportunities for comedy and Buster has taken advantage of every chance.

The star appears as the sap of an old and wealthy family tree, who is not capable even of winding his own watch. He is refused by the girl of his dreams and goes to take the honeymoon himself. He gets on the wrong liner, and by a chance the girl also comes aboard.

They are cut adrift by some foreign revolutionists, and thus the two innocents are left without any crew to run an enormous liner. The fun that Keaton extracts from this situation is endless. He gets into all the trouble possible and there seems to be plenty of such opportunities on board a ship.

Buster makes coffee out of salt water, tries to open a deck chair, decides upon one of the ship's boilers as a suitable stateroom, descends to the bottom of the sea in a diver's suit, fights swordfish with their own weapons, gets caught by an octopus, and when they drift to an island, he manages to keep away the cannibals by combined attack of Roman candles and coconuts. Just when everything seems to be over for them a submarine appears and they are saved.

The picture was directed by Donald Crisp and Buster Keaton, while Kathryn McGuire appeared as the beautiful heroine. It was photographed by Byron Houch and Elgin Lessley and presented by Joseph M. Schenck.

If a long pendulum is set swinging with its point of suspension free to turn, the plane of swing will remain fixed while the rotating earth skews around under it. This is the finest demonstration of the earth's rotation, and recently at Wellington, New Zealand, a pendulum only ten feet long showed the rotation with 40 secs. after the swing began.

CHINESE PIRATE KNIGHTLY ROGUE

Is Polite and Considerate of His Victims.

Foochow, China.—With consideration for their victims worthy of Robin Hood, pirates recently took possession of the Chinese steamer Ningshin, ran her into a harbor near Amoy, and proceeded to loot her most systematically, according to a report brought here by William Overholt and family, American missionaries, passengers and witnesses of the occurrence.

The quartermaster bravely refused to turn over his keys to the pirate chief and was killed, but the pirates made up a purse of $300 and intrusted it to another of the ship's officers to be given to the family of the murdered man.

The pirates boarded the ship in Shanghai in the guise of passengers. When nearing Amoy they overpowered the officers and crew, acting with precision and with practically no violence.

They politely warned the Chinese-speaking passengers not to get excited, informing them their object was primarily the seizing of 90,000 pounds of silver bars consigned to the American Oriental bank at Foochow. Nevertheless, it was explained somewhat apologetically, the pirates needed some clothing and would be obliged to accept some from the passengers.

Only the passengers in the private cabins were robbed, the less fortunate ones in the matter of comforts being unmolested. Toward the foreign travelers the pirates were extremely polite. From them they took nothing, evidently under orders from their chief.

Under compulsion the crew piloted the Ningshin into a harbor, where, in a concealed location, appeared a fort suggestive of medieval days. Boats put out from shore in great numbers to take off the treasure.

Many of the wild-looking boatmen attempted to board, but the pirate chief stood them off at the point of a revolver while his followers brought the loot to the ship's side. He explained to the passengers: "If these fellows get on board I can't control them, and they certainly will rob you of everything you have."

As soon as the silver was unloaded into the small boats the captain of the ship was ordered to put to sea, and as the boats dropped astern the pirates fired a salute with their small arms, the chief bowing low and swinging his hat in a wide theatrical gesture.

Lucky, Once Alley Pup, Guest of $5,000 Dog

New York.—A month ago Lucky was gleaming a precarious living snooping in garbage pails and sleeping in some darkened doorway.

Recently she sat at the right paw of Kiki, a princess in her own right, daughter of Bantam King, a $5,000 bundle of canine perfection. Lucky punched liver and lapped ice cream the guest of honor at a feast of the social elite of New York's dogdom.

About three weeks ago, Mrs. E. A. Rundquist was walking in Madison avenue. With her was Kiki, dignified aristocrat.

On the curb stood Lucky, miserable despondent, shivering. On the other end of the cotton string that encircled her neck was Joey Girojo, six-year-old human fragment, also shivering.

Mrs. Rundquist, wife of a surgeon has a soft spot for boys and dogs. Joey acquired a new sweater, and Lucky a warm blanket, harness and leash. When it came time for Kiki's annual Christmas party to her aristocratic friends, Lucky was included and Joey.

Mrs. Rundquist's spacious apartment was thrown open for the occasion and the guests permitted the freedom of the luxurious Persian rugs and brocade furniture.

Rubber Belts for Girls Arouse Wrath of Doctor

London.—The boyish form and mechanical contrivances to achieve it, resorted to by that indeterminate but presumably large number of English damsels and young matrons to whom cruel destiny has denied the slimmest of physical contour dictated by inexorable fashion, have aroused Sir Harry Edwin Bruce Bruce-Porter to wrathful indignation.

In a recent address at the city of London Y. M. C. A., Sir Bruce denounced as "damnable" the tight-fitting rubber belts which young women are wearing around their hips to create boyish forms. He declared that fashion had conferred a great boon on young girls in doing away with the tight Victorian corset, but it had more than undone its work by reintroducing the rubber girdle, which he maintained would, in all likelihood, produce more serious results than the Victorian harness.

The boyish form, Sir Bruce asserted, with vehemence, was unnatural to women. He exhorted mothers to prevent their daughters from trying to achieve it. The "appalling rubber girdles" he declared, had become a national danger and a danger to the mothers of the future.

Song Helps Sales

Washington.—The United States has plenty of bananas.

Last year, apparently spurred by the popular song, 44,000,000 bunches of bananas were imported, two-fifths of a bunch for every man, woman and child in the republic.

America also bought $26,000,000 worth of nuts abroad. Almonds made up nearly $6,000,000 of this amount.

PURE EGGS AND HENS' FOOD

(By Dr. C. A. L. Reed.)
A correspondent from Bangor, Me., writes as follows:

"It has occurred to me—and I do a lot of thinking about it—to ask whether it is safe to eat raw eggs in a milk shake or raw eggs in any way. Should they not be cooked? I know something about hens. A hen would rather eat rotten things than things that are not rotten. A hen will drink polluted water in preference to pure water. Now the extract or poison in bad, rotten food and in bad water goes more into eggs than into anything else we eat. Kindly let me know the facts of this subject and I will greatly appreciate it."

This letter came some time ago and I marked it at once as the subject for a special article.

I have not written the article sooner because I wished first to ascertain the truth about certain of the facts asked for especially those relating to the food habits of the hen. I accordingly took up the matter with some of my friends among the poultry farmers, with request for special experimental observations. Here are the results of these observations:

The notion that a hen has an instinctive preference for filthy food seems to have grown out of the widespread fact that barnyard hens are generally forced to eat filthy food or nothing.

A barnyard hen, like every other animal, develops habits that are forced upon it by its environment.

When its environment is changed, the hen gradually changes its habits in harmony with its new surroundings.

This means that a barnyard hen transferred to a fine, sanitary poultry yard and furnished with clean food speedily ceases to show a preference for barnyard food.

It follows, therefore, that unclean dietary habits of hens are not so much a reflection on the hens as on their keepers.

But these dietary habits have no relation to the purity of the egg product.

Nature has furnished in the hen a wonderful chemical laboratory for the conversion of all sorts of raw materials into pure food elements.

There is but very slight variation in the chemical constituents of fresh-laid eggs.

The deterioration of an egg is a chemical process due to temperature conditions. Eggs are safely kept in cold storage at a temperature of 58 degrees Fahr. for several months.

The interior of every egg is free from germ contamination. It is not necessary to cook an egg to make it safe for eating.

Care of Umbrellas.
Carelessness in the treatment of umbrellas is a great factor in their rapid deterioration. An umbrella merely damp should be opened and left until dry, while a very wet one should be put to drain first, handle downward, and opened for the final drying.

Forecast of the Future.

Ancient Vikings Had Skill in Navigation

American naval officers who visited Iceland in connection with the globe-encircling flight of the American aviators, were greatly interested in the navigation methods of the old vikings who, more than 1,000 years ago, sailed their little vessels, without compasses or other instruments, across the storm-beaten north Atlantic to Iceland, Greenland and even the shores of North America.
Even today the charts of these waters are largely based on observations and soundings made by whalers and the early explorers, scores of years ago, and the few large vessels that today visit these seas proceed with the utmost caution. Sailing directions, the "Bible of the Sea," are carefully consulted, and when new soundings are made the results are sent to the different governments for incorporation in the charts.
But when Lelf Erickson and the other adventurous old Norsemen of more than ten centuries ago set out on their dangerous voyages there were no charts, and the stars were the only directional guides. The observations they made were for centuries the only sailing directions, and were chanted in the form of sagas, as the galleys swept over the rough seas. Some of these sagas exist today, and old pilots at Reykjavik are familiar with the lore they contain.
One of these, describing the journey from Norway to Greenland, not only takes account of the physical features to be watched for, but advises the navigators to keep a lookout for the birds and whales that mark the approaches to the Icelandic coast.
A naval officer who made a study of this route found it was almost a perfect great-circle, or shortest sailing route, worked out without any scientific aids by navigators who probably could neither read nor write.

What Kind of Savings Have You?
Some people put away money with the reasonable expectation of adding a bit at a time for years to come. They should, by all means, have it out at compound interest.
Others lay by money knowing they may need it in six or ten months or any time. They should put it where it can always be drawn out on demand.
Brunson Certificates meet both these requirements, with absolute safety for every dollar.

Religion in Men's Lives.

Let men know that it (religion) is not mere trifling, it is not a thing to be dabbled with for an instant, it is not a thing for a man to convince himself by an argument, and then keep as it were locked in a shell; it is something that is so deep and serious that when a man has once tested it there is no more chance of his going out of it than there is of his going out of the friendship and the love which holds him with its perpetual expression, with the continued, deeper and deeper manifestation of the way in which the living being belongs to him who has a right to his life.—Phillips Brooks.

HARTMAN THEATER

"Wildflower," Arthur Hammerstein's outstanding musical comedy success, comes to the Hartman theater, Columbus, February 2, for an engagement of one week, in all its glory and freshness, direct from a triumphal run of 62 weeks at the Casino theater, New York with Edith Day and the entire original cast and production and a Broadway chorus of tantalizing charms.

One notable feature of the engagement here will be an augmented orchestra of thirty pieces. Herbert Stothart collaborated with Vincent Youmans on the tuneful score. The books and lyrics are by Otto Harbach, Oscar Hammerstein, 2d., and the story in brief, tells of Nina, a warmhearted, temperamental man of northern Italy caught in the shores of an amusing love plot.

Miss Day, Arthur Hammerstein's vivacious young star, will, of course, portray Nina with all the warmth of her winning magnetism, her richly modulated voice and her gift of spontaneous joyous dancing. She it was who created "Irene" in New York and who first won fame dancing "Tickle Toe" in "Going Up." Bernard Gorcey, veteran fun-maker of many of Arthur Hammerstein's successes appears as Gaston La Roche, about whose diminutive but imposing personality much of the fun revolves, and Esther Howard, the gifted comedienne, appears as his ramish wife in several hits, including "The World's Worst Woman." Paul Lonah, endowed both as singer and actor, plays the lover. Other notable members of the 100% original cast are Bobby Higgins, Marjorie Bonner, Tyer Brooke, Marion Randall, Martinez Randall, Jerome Daley and Paul Porter.

Jingling melodies, racy humor, captivating dances and splendid singing are cleverly blended with an interesting plot in "Wildflower." Add to this the captivating Edith Day and you have the reason why the production had such an extended run in New York. Scenes of romance of beauty and of comedy, follow each other in rapid succession. Transitions from serious to carefree moments are swift and complete and each is done equally well. Edith Day, as Nina, the peasant beauty, could not ask for a more spectacular role.

Her Appearance.

Mildred had accompanied her father to the near-by village and on her return was telling her mother of a woman she saw there. Her mother asked if it was a certain woman, and Mildred immediately replied: "No, mother, she looked never than that."

"FINGER-PRINTING" AN ERRANT BORDER

Airplanes and Cameras May Settle Dispute

Washington.—"If airplanes and efficient cameras had been in use for map-making three-quarters of a century ago when American boundary treaties with neighboring countries were adopted and certain state lines were agreed upon, Uncle Sam could rest easier about the title to his old homestead," says a bulletin from Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. "Incidentally three generations of surveyors and map draftsmen would have been spared much futile tribulation, and thousands of dollars in litigation would have been saved." The bulletin points out that a suit of many years' standing is before the United States Supreme court to determine the correct river boundary between New Mexico and Texas near El Paso, and that a similar problem concerning the international boundary between Texas and Mexico along the Rio Grande river is to be attacked by United States army photographers who will snap aerial views of the disputed territory.

Some Rivers Poor Boundaries.

"Rivers are popularly believed to constitute ideal boundaries," continues the bulletin, "since they make bold lines with one jurisdiction on one bank and another on the other. Rivers that 'stay put' do make unsurpassed boundaries; but unfortunately there are streams or parts of them that wander, so to speak, all over the geographic lot; and more exasperating and unsatisfactory boundaries hardly could be devised. Such are streams flowing between low banks through broad, flat, alluvial valleys, especially in semi-arid regions where there is little vegetation to assist in holding unruly waters to their channels.

"Much controversy has arisen since the creation of the United States over the water boundaries separating our territory from that of Canada, from the St. Croix river at the northeastern corner of Maine to the Rainy river of northern Minnesota, the westernmost stream boundary along the northern line. But the disagreements have been over the selections of these streams: once agreed upon they have remained fixed lines, running in their accustomed wooded and rock-bound courses.

"Not so with the Rio Grande, which forms the most extensive river boundary of the United States, and, save for some 20 miles along the lower Colorado, constitutes the only international river boundary in the South. This river, crossing numerous patches of alluvial valley lands, keeps Uncle Sam on pins and needles. He can never be entirely sure during certain seasons whether he will wake any day to find his supposed boundary marker where it was the night before. Especially is this true where the river approaches the Gulf of Mexico and where the accumulation of waters from its long drainage basin makes spring floods cut irresistibly across bends. Farms and ranches have thus been shifted over night from American to Mexican jurisdiction and vice versa.

"In the rich alluvial valleys extending for miles above and below El Paso the river has had equally marked vagaries in the past, but changes are few now because of the control of flood waters only a short distance above the city by the huge Elephant Butte dam of the United States reclamation service. From the city of El Paso northward for approximately 20 miles the Rio Grande forms the boundary, theoretically, between Texas and New Mexico. This boundary is not the Rio Grande of today, however, but that of 1850 when the dividing line was supposedly settled for all time. It is the disagreement over the location of this 'Rio Grande of 1850' that has brought about the pending suit between the two states in the United States Supreme court.

Farmer Becomes a Smuggler.

"The vagaries of rivers when international lines are affected sometimes lead to queer results. South of El Paso the Rio Grande some years ago branched in the alluvial valley and enclosed a large island. Across this island a surveyed line has since been recognized as the international boundary between the United States and Mexico. Cultivated fields reach this line at many points. Recently United States customs officials brought charges against a cotton farmer on the island for importing cotton without a license. The charges raised in the minds of most readers a picture of a lawless farmer-smuggler bringing loads of 'bootleg' cotton across the line under cover of darkness. As a matter of fact the farmer had inadvertently set his field fence some four feet south of the international line. When he harvested his crop he merely followed the entirely proper routine of all his farmer neighbors in picking ninety-nine one-hundredths of his cotton. But when he plucked the lint from the row or two nearest the fence he ran foul of the federal customs laws and technically became a smuggler.

"It is in this valley from El Paso southward for some 60 miles that Uncle Sam, with Mexican co-operation, will try the experiment of photographing his border from airplanes. It is believed that a photographic record of the river and its near-by landmarks will be invaluable in the future. Any disagreements as to changes in the river can easily be checked up either by measuring from the locations shown in the picture map or by snapping new pictures and comparing them with those of 1924."

CIGARET SMOKERS JOLLIFY

Blessing Anti-Cigaret Bill Was Killed by Committee of the House Thursday.

After a bitter and prolonged fight in the house judiciary committee during which the sentiments of members of the committee swayed back and forth for three successive ballots, the Blessing anti-cigaret bill, designed to prohibit the manufacture and sale of cigarettes and cigaret papers, was killed by the committee.

A motion by Representative Thomas L. Tallentire, of Hamilton county, to indefinitely postpone the consideration of the bill was carried by an 8 to 5 vote, after the committee had thrashed around for nearly two hours in attempting various means of diverting the measure from immediate consideration by the house.

"90 Per Cent are Smokers."

Reason for the defeat of the bill in committee was attributed to the belief of the majority of the members that it would but add another unenforceable law to the statutes of the state. While sentiment of many of the members inclined toward some amendment to the present law placing more drastic restrictions on the sale of cigarettes to minors under the age of 18, it was generally felt that the Blessing bill was too sweeping in its scope and would include all adult cigaret users who would continue to violate the law.

Representative Tallentire, speaking against the bill, declared that by the admission of the proponents of the bill, fully 90 per cent of the male adult population of the state was addicted to the use of tobacco and should this bill be passed they would be made criminals in the eyes of the law. Dempsey of Cuyahoga, declared that the enactment of this bill would lend encouragement to the opponents of the present prohibition laws to modifications, because of the impossibility to enforce it. Krueger, of Cuyahoga declared that it is an impossibility to legislate the morals of the individual and that this was what is attempted in the Blessing bill.

Following the defeat of his measure in committee, Rev. Mr. Blessing left the committee room, together with Mrs. O. L. Flatter, a research worker who had appeared in behalf of the bill. With tears of indignation in his eyes, the author of the bill assailed the newspapers for "not giving me a square deal," in the consideration of the bill.

Three Doctors Always at Hand.

The first monastery of the Benedictine order was founded by St. Benedict at Subiaco, in Italy, in 515. The Directorium Salernum, a work published by the medical school at Salerno, then the foremost in Europe, taught that "If you can't find a doctor, remember that you always have three doctors at hand—good spirits, good rest and moderation in diet." The cloister was the busiest place in the monastery. Here all the monks not engaged in other work spent the day writing and illuminating manuscripts and books. Each one had a special seat in the cloister allotted to him. During meal times no conversation was allowed in the dining room, the text for the day being read out to the monks from a pulpit.

Ground Nuts.

When certain of the Pilgrims were captured and taken to Canada, a number escaped, returning to New England after many hardships. Historical tradition says they lived upon "ground nuts." Since their return journey was made during winter months, the ground must have been frozen, and the nuts very hard to secure. Real ground nuts have a rich, sweet flavor much like coconut, but the nuts of the dwarf ginseng are not so good. The nuts of the dwarf ginseng grow on the ends of slender white stems, imbedded in the dark brown earthmold. The stems are fragile, and break easily, making it necessary to dig for nearly every nut. About the last of April, the flowers of the dwarf ginseng usually appear. They are very pretty, resembling tiny stars with clusters of fine white points gleaming above circles of dull green leaves. These green leaves are very sensitive, and have an odd way of wilting when they are handled.—Christian Science Monitor.

Wisdom and Prudence.

There is a fine line between wisdom and prudence. The result not of caution, but of fear.—
